TIDE TURNING AS FIRST YEAR OF WAR CLOSES

Nation Moving Forward on Rough Road to Victory on Pearl Harbor Anniversary.

'WE'VE ONLY STARTED'

1942 Output Cited, Sights Lifted Higher For '43; Allied Power Grows.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—This is the anniversary of a day of shame; it is also the beginning of what promises to be the hardest and bloodiest phase of the war on the home fronts and the battlefields.

Dec. 7, 1941, was a day of infamy and galling defeat. Dec. 7, 1942 finds "the United States too hard at work" for victory—in the words of the office of war information—to take time for any national observance. The anniversary theme is "work, fight, sacrifice."

President Roosevelt set the tone when he felt Dec. 7 "should be observed as a day of silence in remembrance of a great infamy."

In keeping with that theme the president on this week-end anniversary vigorously attacked the gigantic manpower and food problems by issuing two executive orders drastically tightening already strict controls over the lives of individual Americans. He also discussed war strategy with Canadian Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King.

The president could not afford to rest. The war has yet to be won. Military leaders warned it would be a long-step-by-step, uphill fight. But 12 months after Pearl Harbor—with most of Europe and much of Asia in enemy hands—the United States and her Allies at last are on the offensive.

In New Guinea, the Solomons, North Africa, and Russia the United Nations are facing forward. The navy, despite the great wound inflicted upon it a year ago, has won three spectacular victories since—in the Coral sea, at Midway, and in the Solomons.

The United States alone in 1942 will have outbuilt the Axis in airplanes (48,000), in tanks (32,000), in guns (17,000 large anti-aircraft weapons), and in ships (8,200,000 tons).

But "we have only started" to build what we need for victory, according to War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson. October output was "disapointing."

Since Pearl Harbor the United States has spent $47,000,000,000 for war and individuals are pay-

RATIONED ROADS

State Plans 'Priorities' on Highway Repairs.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio roads are in for rationing, Highway Director H. S. Sours said today.

Substantial shrinkage of income due to gasoline rationing will lead to a system of road rating based on military needs.

"A" highways will be those carrying raw materials, industrial products, and food supplies. Essential roads used by war workers and in inter-city communication will rate a "B" classification.

Scenic and vacation land roads together with many secondary arteries are probably "out" for the duration,the highway chief said, as far as improvements go.

Lack of funds will cut down new highway construction to the barest minimum. Most work will be of a maintenance character involving materials not needed in war industries.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(INS)— Authorities today revealed that 12 army airmen were believed killed near Maxwell field, Ala., when an army transport plane crashed Saturday night. Identity of the victims has not been announced. The plane was from Maxton field, N. C.

Roaring CAP Planes Drop 'Bond Bombs' as City 'Remembers' Pearl Harbor With Buying Rush

AIRPLANES roaring over the city with a pamphlet bombardment and a second air raid alert at 12:25 p. m. today ushered in an afternoon devoted to war bond buying in which the Junior Association of Commerce planned to exceed a quota of $100,000 as Mansfield's commemoration of the infamy attack a year ago today on Pearl Harbor.

An all-clear signal followed the alert by a few minutes, banks and other bond-buying depots reopening their doors for a 4½-hour period of selling bonds and receiving pledges which were distributed during Sunday night's alert to every residence in Mansfield and suburban area in the record time of approximately 16 minutes. The banks had closed at 12 noon to prepare for the pledge fulfillment rush.

During the morning Police Chief Thomas M. Bell directed the collection of boxes which were available at strategic points throughout the city in which citizens deposited their pledges.

National emblem displays from home and factory and stores throughout the city waved Mansfield's defiance of the Axis threats. More and more employing concerns reported employe allegiance with the 10 per cent club as pledges poured in.

Bombarding the city in three flights with leaflets urging bond purchases, members of the Civil Air Patrol came over at 12:25 p. m., making their turns over Shelby.

The first flight, pilot and co-pilot, was composed of Lloyd Amato and Ed Bates, David Kinsell and Darrell Nichols, jr., and C. F. Fernyak and Otis Cummins.

Second flight was comprised of Ronald Poth and Darrell Nichols, sr., David Robinson and

COUNTY OPENS MEAT PROGRAM

Thousands of Homes To Be Contacted This Week In Voluntary Set-Up.

Thousands of Mansfield and Richland county homes will be contacted this week in an effort to enlist their cooperation in a voluntary meat rationing program. Organization of the personnel that will make the canvass, was announced today by James Eberly, war service chairman.

In order that our armed forces and allied nations will have enough meat, housewives will be asked, in literature to be distributed this week, to limit their families to these amounts: two and one-half pounds for persons over 12 years of age, and one-half pounds for children from six to 12 and three-fourths of a pound for children under six years of age. Ways and means of maintaining this schedule, together with a list of meat substitutes and other information will be included in the literature given out.

Cities of Shelby and Mansfield will have their own war service chiefs, who will work under Eberly's direction. Theodore Lutz has been named to com-

WICKARD JOINS 'DIRECTOR' LIST IN WAR EFFORT

Put In Complete Charge of Feeding Armed Forces, Civilians, Allies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, who grew up on the farm and who believes bread is as important as bullets in winning a war, today was in complete charge of supplying the greatest food needs in American history.

President Roosevelt directed the 49-year-old Wickard yesterday to assume "full responsibility for and control over" the nation's food program, an undertaking that must reach unprecedented proportions next year in order to help feed the armed forces, the Allies and liberated countries.

Wickard, who estimates that up to 25 per cent of the 1943 output will be required for lend-lease and the armed forces, takes over the marketing and distribution supervision formerly exercised by the war production board.

Included in this is supervision of food rationing, although these programs will continue to be administered through the office of price administration.

Wickard, a Hoosier farmer who says that "good food and plenty of it is one of the best missionaries for democracy that I know of," becomes the fourth single director of a national resource in President Roosevelt's official war family.

The others are: manpower, Paul V. McNutt; rubber, William M. Jeffers, and petroleum, Harold Ickes.

Wickard has served notice that he will make every effort to raise next year's production allotment for farm machinery, which has been restricted by WPB to 20 per cent of the 1940 production, as against 80 per cent for 1942.

PRAISES UNITY

FDR Says It's Dominant Note of U. S. War Effort.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Unity of the American people and of the United Nations has provided the dominant note in the war effort as the Allies take the initiative against the Axis powers, President Roosevelt believes.

In a letter written for the Army and Navy Journal, the president said he was proud of "our unity in deliberation, in decision, in action."

"Our initial acceptance of the defensive, our assumption of the initiative when the opportunity struck, were not hit or miss calculations," he said. "They were the outcome of thoughtful estimate made not by nightmarish amateurs, but by military men whose lives have been consecrated to the study of war."

THIEVES STEAL CASH, COFFEE

Trucker Robbed, Cafeteria Looted in Week-End Thefts; Two Women Held.

One holdup which netted two colored youths $41, a shoplifting incident including $140 worth of merchandise and a six-pound coffee theft from a cafeteria highlighted Mansfield's week-end of petty crime, according to police reports today.

William Blankenship, Indianapolis truck driver, told police this morning that while sleeping in his parked truck on North Franklin avenue he was awakened by two colored boys who slugged him and escaped with a purse containing $41 and valuable records. Lieut. Eugene Hartnett investigated.

Mrs. Beulah Whitcomb, Galion, is awaiting municipal court trial on the charge of stealing a $135 fur coat from the Montgomery Ward and company store late Saturday. Grace Baker, also of Galion, was implicated by Mrs. Whitcomb, police say, and is charged with taking a suit of pajamas. The women were apprehended in a nearby lunchroom by Patrolmen Don Mitchell and John Steel after Russell Miller, assistant manager of the store, found a woman's discarded coat in the store.

Six pounds of coffee was the only loot taken by burglars who ransacked the Evergreen cafeteria, Walnut and Third streets, early

Paid Workers On Staff As Gas Panel Shifts Personnel

While transportation officials and gasoline panel members conjectured, with divergent opinions, whether the first week of gasoline rationing with its crowded buses and greatly decreased gasoline sales, would be typical of the weeks to come, gasoline panel members announced changes in their personnel arrangement effective today.

Under the supervision of Nelson Neff, ration board secretary, two paid employes who have been employed in the general ration office, will be assigned as clerks to the gasoline panel office in the Mohican building. These workers, Miss Ruth Miller, in charge, and Miss Betty Galloway, will authorize applications and certificates, while volunteer workers, who formerly have done all the work, will be in charge of detail work in the office. Hours will be from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. except Saturdays when the office will close at noon.

Responsibility for organizing the gasoline panel personnel gradually will be transferred from the hands of Paul English, a volunteer worker who was temporarily released from the private business of W. J. Spreng, panel chairman, to Charles Beelman, chairman of the general ration board. He will welcome volunteer workers.

DELAY CALLING MARRIED MEN UNTIL SPRING

Those Not Ordered To Report For December Induction Get 'Stay' Till March.

Richland county married men who have not been ordered to report for army induction in December probably won't be called before March or April despite the government order halting induction of men 38 or older, selective service board clerks predicted today.

The three Richland county boards were awaiting instructions issued today in Columbus by Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, to take men past 38 off their December induction lists.

Board 1 had scheduled five past that age for induction this month and the other two boards said they probably had "a few" although they had not checked their lists.

While some married men have been called for December induction board clerks said they were registrants who were married when induction was imminent or are not maintaining bona fide family relationships.

Boards 2 nd 3 are expected to begin calling youths in the 18-20 age group in January, but Board 1, with one of its lightest calls in more than a year, probably won't have to induct the boys under 20 until February, it was said.

Board 2 has a light call for next month, but Board 3 at the courthouse must fill one of its biggest monthly quotas in January. It will be necessary to call registrants 18 and 19 years old to meet the Board 3 quota, a board representative said.

The county's pool of registrants in the 18-20 age group is expected to last for at least two months, delaying the induction of married men until early in the spring.

Local boards were preparing today to register more 18-year-old youths during the first of three registration periods, beginning next Friday. Youths who were born on or after July 1, 1924, but not after Aug. 31, 1924, will be required to register during the week starting Dec. 11 and ending Dec. 17.

Hershey To Stay As Director Of Selective Service

WASHINGTON — (AP) — War manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt said today that Major Gen. Lewis B. Hershey would continue as director of the selective service system, for the present at least.

This was the first official word on Hershey's position since he and his agency were placed under McNutt by presidential order giving McNutt control over allocation of military and civilian manpower.

Asked if Hershey would continue as draft director, McNutt replied:

"Yes, for the time being, anyway."

McNutt's aides explained that Hershey, like Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry, director of the manpower commission's division of operations, was a regular officer "on loan" from the army for his present work and could be called by the army at any time.

Big RAF Fleet Hits Karlsruhe In Night Raid

Axis Positions In Africa Blasted, Two Transport Planes Downed

BULLETIN

LONDON —(U.P.)— Allied tank forces were reported in a communique today to be heavily engaged against attacking Axis armored elements in the Tebourba region.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—Allied planes, delivering shattering loads of high explosives, have rocked Axis positions from Tunisia to the Italian mainland and attacked German aerial troop transports in the Mediterranean, front dispatches said today.

Two waves of Royal Air Force medium bombers attacked the harbor and docks at Bizerte yesterday a short time after Allied planes, following up the American raid on Naples, blasted the Reggio airdrome at the southern extremity of Italy.

British long-range fighters meanwhile attacked a convoy of eight north-bound German Junkers-52 transports northwest of Linosa island, 100 miles south of Sicily, shooting down two of the big planes and damaging another. It was not determined whether the Junkers were carrying troops at the time.

Front reports said there were no RAF losses.

Smashing at Bizerte, the chief Axis port of entry in Tunisia, the first wave of planes dropped bombs near a railway freight station and on fuel storage dumps, quays and freight yards. The second wave concentrated on blasting objectives at the entrance to Bizerte harbor.

In the Libyan battle area, fighter-bombers, attacking in force and at low levels, scored many direct hits on enemy troops, gun position and slit trenches in the Mersa Brega area, 25 miles northeast of the El Agheila defile. Long range fighters roared west of El Aghelia, attacking road traffic and Growing Losses By Allies Attest To Scope Of New Attacks.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Allied bombing forces, steadily building a "fourth front" in the air against the Axis, were engaged today in virtual round-the-clock bombardment of Nazi Europe, hitting at targets deep in Germany by night and the fringe of France, Holland and Italy by day.

The Royal Air Force took over the hard-hitting night shift on the air front, smashing at Karlsruhe, the big arms and industrial center deep in southwest Germany.

Indicating the weight of the RAF attack, the London Evening Star reported that for more than an hour and a half during the night hundreds of heavy bombers roared across the Dover Straits.

The Star said it was one of the biggest RAF forces heard over the Dover area in some time.

Participating in the attack were the biggest British bomb carriers—Lancasters, Stirlings, Halifaxes and Wellingtons—and the German communique admitted that damage was caused as well as apparently considerable civilian casualties.

The attack was carried out despite bad weather. Nine British bombers were reported missing and two German night fighters were shot down.

The growing scope of the British-American air bombardment of the continent was indicated by the losses of the past 48 hours which totalled 23 bombers and two fighters.

But against the losses were measured attacks on several prime Axis, war centers, including the great Phillips Electrical works in Holland and the Fives-Lille Locomotive works at Lille, France, and the key Nazi airdrome for the western Europe coast at Abbeville.

Nazi planes dropped a few

PINCH: Allies Batter Buna After Isolating Enemy Base

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA —Heavy fighting raged today in the Jap-held village of Buna in southeast New Guinea where Allied forces smashed repeatedly at the enemy defenses after isolating the coastal base by driving a salient to the sea and occupying a beach position east of Buna. (Reuter's reported that the Japanese were landing airborne reinforcements in the Gona-Buna area. An Australian patrol, it said, discovered that Japanese soldiers, killed between Gona and the Kumusi river, were wearing new uniforms and boots.)

American and Australian troops strove to overcome barricaded Japanese machine-gun positions at the base from which the Japs last July launched their unsuccessful overland assault against the Allied base of Port Moresby.

"Our attacks penetrated to the beach east of Buna and pressure is being maintained against the enemy on other sectors," an official communique on the fighting in the Buna-Gona area, last Jap foothold in Papua, said.

A new attack against the Jap air and naval base of Rabaul, on New Britain island, was revealed. Under cover of darkness Allied bombers heavily attacked the town and airdrome with high explosives and incendiary bombs.

Both Allied and Jap planes continued active in the New Guinea battle area, with the Japs conducting a noon raid on the Allied

SHIFT: Axis Now Forced To Fight On Fronts Allies Choose

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Axis forces that for many dark months could fight the war when and where they chose are at last being forced on the defensive along all the world's battle-fronts, military authorities said today, and the United nations, with armed might growing to overwhelming proportions, are on the road to victory. Yet, these experts agreed, final victory is still long months, if not years, in the future. The bloodiest campaigns—invasion of Nazi Europe and the conquest of Japan—are still to be fought. The greatest sacrifices by the people at home are yet to be made.

These were regarded as the main elements of the situation in which America found itself as the first year of a war born in treachery at Pearl Harbor closed and the probable pattern of the year ahead began to take shape. Here are the main lines of development anticipated by authorities:

1. The principal effort will be directed at crushing Germany and Italy. The conquest of North Africa is but a preliminary to the big push which may be launched from several directions once the Allied high command decides the time is ripe and their forces are ready.

2. Because of the wisdom of concentrating strength at the main point of attack, operations in the Pacific-Asiatic theater will be largely designed to hold the Japanese in check and, possibly, to furnish jumping off places for final operations there when sufficient forces become available.

3. Despite the demands of our own armies, the Russians who started the tide turning against Germany, the Chinese, who have

Make It Strictly Scent-imental

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Beauty Editor

A sure way to please a woman this Christmas is to give her something to make her lovelier. Man has been doing this for ages, as a sentimental means of paying tribute to the girl of his dreams.

Despite the war and priorities, you won't have any trouble finding a suitable beauty gift for every girl on your list. The stores are filled with them at any price you want to pay. Maybe it's because they anticipate that with taxes and the cost of living zooming, women will hesitate before they spend their hard-earned money on such luxuries themselves next year.

Here are a few suggestions:

You can't go wrong on "sentimentals." Even if you don't know the perfume she's been using, most every girl likes a new fragrance. You can surely put her heart in a flutter with one perfume that comes in an adorable heart-shaped bottle. Or, if you'd rather give her a variety of fragrances, there's a little toboggan that carries four flacons, each containing a different scent. Another is a handsome little Christmas tree that grows five little bottles of perfume from its branches.

You might set her up with a travel kit for that first trip she'll take after all this war business is over. Nice, too, to have should she visit her beau during his furlough. The kits range in price and size—from a couple of dollars to $25. The less expensive are attractively boxed to fit into a corner of her suitcase. The deluxe numbers are week-end bags, completely fitted with all a girl needs in the way of beauty items.

Manicure cases are lovely gifts, and practical, too, since so many girls are doing their own nails these days. You can buy them for as little as a dollar or for as much as $10. The better ones are equipped with manicure scissors, file, tweezers, pusher, and the usual bottles of polish and removers. There's a honey, selling for $6, which makes a beautiful jewel box when the tray holding the manicure lid is removed.

CHRISTMAS VALENTINES: Put her heart in a flutter with a heart-shaped bottle of perfume.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

FOR THE FRACTION of a second a glint in Mary's eyes showed me that she comprehended and subconsciously approved my comment about Olina. She had forgiven the exiled Princess of Transvania long ago for her predatory attempts to lure Noel away, and the two young women had become fast friends. But I knew Mary would be more than human if she could forget what Olina had tried to do. Deep within her, I was sure, stirred a primitive impulse of which she probably was not aware, to pay the exiled princess back in her own coin.

Nothing of that impulse, however, showed in her half jesting, half reproving answer to my quip, and I felt that she either had something superhuman in her makeup, or was showing marvelous histrinic power.

Mary Shocked.

"Auntie Madge, I ought to smack you for that speech," she said. "It is a distinct shock to me. I've always exalted you above most women because you're never catty, but if ever a remark held a 'miauw,' that speech was it."

"I am properly rebuked," I said, smiling, "and I'm heartily with you in anything we can do to keep Olina from noticing that Georges is—is—"

"Casting an eye in my direction?" Mary interposed. "I know, and I shall keep out of Georges' way, not only on Olina's account but on Noel's also. For it Noel is straining at the leash now on account of Steve Redfield, who he knows could never get to first base with me, how do you think he will react if Georges, who made first, second and third, and almost scored a home run with me, appears on the scene, wearing the romantic halo of a fugitive, and tries to broadcast from my station?"

Madge Plotting.

"I know," I said, "but I shall conjure up some scheme for dealing with Georges, even if I have my father keep him incommunicado."

"That would be worse than death for the gregarious Georges," she commented. "But I would better run along back and get some sleep before the performance tonight. Of course Noel and I had a cozy, drugged nap last night, but we arose at an unearthly hour this morning and we both need sleep."

As she rose and bent over for a good-bye kiss, rarely omitted since her childhood, I caught at her dress and held her fast.

"Sorry, darling," I said, "but I can't let you go yet. Father told me to keep you until he comes over, which ought to be soon. He said he had a scheme he meant to broach to Georges, and if approved he would leave the details to me. Evidently he wishes to see you about it too."

Spencer's Plan.

"Sounds thrilling," Mary commented indifferently. I saw that she was eager to get back to her apartment, but she settled back docilely in her chair, until my father's knock sounded.

"Is Mary still here?" he asked. From his air of alertness I knew that his interview with Georges had given him some especially valuable information.

"Glad to see you, Mary," he said perfunctorily, then turned to me. "Can you arrange a reunion dinner or after-theater supper tonight for Georges with the three Veritzens, yourself, Noel and Mary, preferably at the Veritzen suite?" he asked.

CHAPTER III

It would have been restful at least to marry Tom, go up to the lumber mills in Westwood, and take possession of a little cottage, be one of the young wives of that world. There would be a small Tom, a May for his mother, a John for her father Tom would always be kind and good and provide for them all, love them always.

She put the thought away with an unexpected touch of heartache She wasn't going to be sentimental, surely, over Tom O'Connor!

"Ever see What's-his-name, you know, that Holland boy — Vere Holland, any more?" Frances was asking idly.

"Who's he?" Tom wanted to know.

"Kid that came in here one night with a lot of Burlingame stiffs," Frances answered, her mouth full. "Awful nice kid."

"When this happen?" Tom demanded, instinctively jealous Dina kept her eyes lowered, moved the straw lazily back and forth in her drink, but she was trembling, she was hot and cold with fear

"Oh, some time in October, wasn't it, Dina?"

"About then," she managed a yawn 'He came in here with two girls and another man — a guy named Freddy Lippincott, you know whose sister was stolen from a sorority house somewhere in the east," Dina said tousing herself.

She must meet this situation, she told herself there was nothing to be afraid of 'Remember, about three months ago?"

'This kid came in with them" Frances took up the story "He came over to where Dina and I were sitting with the Beatty boys —you were there, weren't you, Dunk?"

'Looking for a pickup?" Tom asked grimly

'No, he told the boys it was his birthday and wanted us to drink his health," Frances explained, 'and he introduced himself to them and asked to be introduced to us. And then he sat down—"

"And fell for Dina like a ton of Coos Bay coal ' Duncan Beatty said in his deep voice Everyone laughed

'I'll bet he did" Tom said "Ever see him again?'

'Oh yes!" Frances said in apparent innocence Dina knew that Frances would be glad to say anything that might upset Tom's devotion to herself He came into the store lots of times, didn't he Di? And he's been here evenings"

"Awfully nice" Dina said with an air of dispassionate concession 'Vere Holland His mother's Mrs Cutler Holland Father's married again, somewhere back east"

Tom turned to her his kindly, big brotherly smile

'You know quite a lot about him don't you kid?"

"Oh he's one to tell you everything" Frances said 'He'd sit here and talk away by the hour I like him—plenty"

"Did you like him, too Dina?" Tom asked

'We—we all did," she said, angry because her voice was suddenly so faint

"Well, say, I'll have to find out more about this feller," Tom said with an air of good-natured disapproval 'Where is he now?"

"At home in—Hillsborough it is, I guess," Dina answered

"What's he do?"

"Studying law. It's a long course, you know." Someone had put a nickel into the piano, a waltz thundered forth, couples began to move out upon the floor.

"Come on," Willie Mulligan said Willie had a blue, hard-shaven chin, he was thin, black-headed, nervous, and wiry. "Tom don't know that you were nuts about that feller!" Willie said as they danced

'What Tom doesn't know won't hurt him, and it's none of your business, Willie!" Dina said She started the sentence with something of her characteristic spirit, but her secret knowledge, her secret fears weakened her anger halfway, and she ended it on a little girl's note of misery and appeal.

Willie had her in his arms, her tawny soft mass of hair, her firm, straight, tall body, her blue eyes were close to him Her knees touched his as they danced, her warm hand was on his shoulder. He spoke thickly

'I've always—you don't know how much I've always liked you, Dina ' he said huskily

'You've always been kind to me —ever since that day the boys took away the ladder and I was stuck on the chicken-house roof," she answered gratefully

'Well don't you double-cross Tom! There isn't a girl alive good enough for Tom"

'I know that!' she said quickly

"He isn't our kind Holland isn't," the big boy went on "He was an awful nice feller, I'll agree to that But chances are we won't ever see him again"

"Oh, but we will, we must—I must, I must!" she screamed in her heart Aloud she said nothing and they finished their dance in silence

Back at the table she found Tom next to her again, and for a while they murmured, Dina with her elbows on the crumpled checked cloth her chin in her hands

She had not known Tom was coming from the mills for a week he had taken her by surprise, and although she knew that all his hopes of winning her had gone down in the wreckage of her own happiness he didn't know it, and, being Dina, she still could not help turning upon him the full battery of the charm against which he was helpless

"And is your foreman—this Bill Williams—nice, Tom'"

Well, he's always swell to me." Tom drew her a little diagram of the plant on a card from his pocket

Here was the river, the sawmill, the veneering plant where they made ply board, old Hudson's house the general offices the recreation hall, the rows of bunkhouses

Oh, how pleasant this security, this dancing and flirting and gossiping would be if time might go back and everything be as it had been only a few months earlier!

How simple how uncomplicated life was when its only worries were poverty and hard work and the disorder at home and the aching ambition to do things and go places and be somebody! She could manage all those disadvantages she could solve all those problems so easily now, they would be nothing nothing, if she might only go back to them!

She Geraldine Cashman, to be thinking these thoughts, to be obliged to think them! She, who did not drink who never had allowed any boy to take the usual liberties with her, who hated necking and wooing and all the other forms of license which some of the girls she despised permitted so easily!

'You're tired Tom said

'I must be a little tired," she admitted wishing her eyes were not so ready to fill with tears The others were tired and sleepy too they gathered up wraps, paid their check, stumbled out into the cold, sharp dark Dina drew the mangy fur of her collar about her throat, tightened her hand inside of Tom's arm

Directors Decide to Go Ahead With Inter-City Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Co-operative club members tomorrow night will get a squint of Ohio State university's football stars of the future when Buckeye Freshman Coach Ernie Godfrey shows grid movies at the club dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Godfrey has written that he will bring movies of the Ohio State-University of Southern California game, and also of the Ohio-Michigan freshman game — that films of the Iowa Seahawk and Indiana games will not be available for tomorrow night.

That shouldn't make the Co-op club members mad. Mansfield has a lot of interest in that Ohio State freshman undefeated team of the past autumn.

Rivals for the quarterback position were two former Mansfield Tyger stars, Dave Templeton and Bill Doolittle, while a former Madison star, Walt Weimer, saw plenty of action at fullback.

And Templeton drew high praise for his fine blocking in the frosh victory over Michigan.

There will be other fellows in that freshman lineup who will attract the interest of football fans. Outstanding, of course, will be Berea Tommy Phillips, regarded as one of the greatest prospects entering college this fall anywhere in the nation.

And big Lou Groza, place kicking phenom from Martins Ferry will also take the eye of the spectators for this movie show. Yes, the freshman pictures should prove interesting enough.

I don't know whether Pat Phelan, sports editor of the Newark Advocate, would be kidding, but here is his reaction on the Newark Wildcat team which meets Mansfield's Tygers here Friday night:

The Wildcats have a green team and a new coach, Max Douglas, formerly coach at Wilson junior high here. He succeeded Red Orr when the latter accepted a commission in the Coast Guard this fall.

There is not a letterman on the 12-man squad, but the 'Cats didn't look bad in defeating Columbus East, 55-25, in their opener last night, although East was pitifully weak and it wasn't much of a test.

However, Newark should develop and won't be exactly a push-over for anyone. The team is very rangy, but slower than the Newark teams of the past few years.

Regards,
Pat Phelan

Illini, Badgers Rule Favorites

CHICAGO—(AP)—The full scale basketball campaign opens this week with all Big Ten schools in action, and already the word is around to look out for Wisconsin and Illinois.

The Badgers, having concluded their best football season in 30 years, are aiming to regain their cage title which Illinois' sophomores snapped up last winter. Wisconsin signalled the warning in its debut Saturday night by trimming Marquette 45 to 36.

Illinois, with a 54 to 35 warmup over the frosh last week, plays two games at home this week, meeting Detroit tonight and Nebraska Saturday.

Michigan and Northwestern open at home tonight against Michigan State and Western Michigan, respectively, while the Hoosiers try to make it two straight against Wabash.

Ohio State plays its first game tomorrow night against Ohio Wesleyan at Columbus.

MEETING POSTPONED

Meeting of the Charles Mill Sportsmen's club, scheduled tomorrow night at Municipal courtroom, has been postponed, Secretary Leo Yuncker announced today.

Sports Help War Effort

Lose Outstanding Men To Uncle Sam's Colors.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—It was just a year ago today that the Giants-Dodgers football game at the Polo Grounds was interrupted by the stunning announcement that the Japs had attacked Pearl Harbor. In the 12 months that followed the infamous assault, sports have contributed admirably to the war effort.

As outstanding figures like Joe Louis, Billy Conn, Bob Feller, and Sam Snead joined the colors, sports stars of the past—particularly those of the West Point and Annapolis gridirons—wrote glorious chapters in the grim story of this conflict. They were men like Halsey, Eisenhower, Stilwell, Trapnell, Daly, Necrason, Saunders, Borries, Cutter, Giffen, etc.

Meanwhile Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, a flock of football coaches and other specialists in sports training climbed into uniforms and united in conditioning our fighting men for the gruelling, deadly work ahead of them.

Civilian sports carried on in big-time fashion generally, contributing hundreds of thousands of dollars to the various war funds and providing a valuable psychological relief for service men on furlough, for war-workers and other busy citizens.

As the war progressed, it became increasingly apparent to our service heads that only young, well-conditioned men could withstand the rigors of the modern, lightning brand of combat. It was announced over the week-end that men past 38 no longer would be inducted into service. We, personally, were particularly interested in the athletic or conditioning aspects of the campaign, not only as a sports writer but as one who had gone through strenuous navy training in the last war.

We were intensely interested also because we knew the stress that both German and Japan had placed upon conditioning as they readied for war. We spent a month in Germany, early in 1936—getting advance features on the Olympic games which were staged that summer in Berlin. From the moment Hitler became Mr. Big in 1933, he went all-out for Germany-wide athletics in one of the most comprehensive conditioning campaigns in history.

Meanwhile, in America we had seen the Japanese at our Athletic meets for years, nearly always with notebook and camera, copying our methods. By filching our technique, they became excellent swimmers. But they had difficulty learning to run correctly. Their legs weren't made right. They picked up our game of baseball and played it throughout Japan.

Physical condition is ultra-important in war. The United States has been tops in international athletics for years. Our exceptional athletes were better generally than the exceptional athletes of any country in the world, and we are confident that the average youngster was better conditioned too. Let's keep them that way. Let big-time sports continue to serve as the inspiration for young America, particularly during the days until Pearl Harbor is avenged.

Providence Beats Indianapolis Caps

(By United Press)

The Providence Reds defeated the Indianapolis Caps, 5-3 Sunday night to climb closer to the idle pace setting Hershey Bears in the eastern division of the American hockey league as the Buffalo Bisons, leading the western division, increased their margin by blanking New Haven, 5 0.

The Reds scored in every period, climaxing their attack with a three-goal assault in the third on tallies by Bill Calladine, Ab Demarco and Johnny Boothman.

Blanked in the first period, Buffalo broke loose for four goals in the second period to sew up the game as Goalie Gordon Bell stopped every shot. The Eagles tossed his way. Harry Lewis, Max Bennett, Art Chapman and Dede Klein all tallied for Buffalo in their big surge. Klein added another in the third.

LEAGUE PREXY WAITS FOR DEVELOPMENTS

EBENSBURG, Pa. — (U.P.) — President Elmer Daily of the Mid-Atlantic and Penn State Baseball leagues said today he had adopted an attitude of "let's wait and see" on the question of whether the leagues would operate in 1943.

Daily admitted that he was in the dark on the immediate future of the leagues, but expressed the hope that something would develop to permit the minor circuits to continue next year.

Statistics Favor Bears

Trim Chicago Cards 21-7 In League Tilt.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO —(AP)— The tale of statistics, which may or may not tell the true story of a team's ability, greatly favors the Chicago Bears over the Washington Redskins in their championship playoff Sunday at the nation's capital.

The Bears, who trimmed the Chicago Cardinals 21 to 7—allowing a freak touchdown in the last quarter to spoil chances for the best defensive scoring record in 15 years—hold these statistical advantages over the Redskins for the 11-game season:

155 first downs to 149; 3,978 yards gained to 3,121; 1,898 yards by rushing to 1,521; 1,891 by passing to 1,600; 376 points scored to 227; 84 points given up to opponents to 102; 519 yards gained against them by rushing to 848.

Marshington's margin: 257 attempted forwards to 192; 137 completions to 94 (completion percentage is lower, however); 17 of their passes intercepted to 28; 45-yard punting average to 39; 610 yards lost by penalties to 905; 1,093 yards gained against them by passing to 1,179.

The Green Bay Packers edged the Pittsburgh Steelers 24 to 21 on Don Hutson's 28-yard, angled field goal, and the Giants' great center, Mel Hein, ended a 13-year career of pro ball as his team whipped Brooklyn 10 to 0.

Big Ten Studies Schedule Revision

CHICAGO—(INS)—Western conference officials, gathering for tomorrow's annual midwinter meeting said today consideration would be given to a drastic revision of the 1943 football schedules.

The schedules were drawn up a year ago, but the increasing necessity for travel curtailment and for other measures to fit in withthe war effort may result in many changes in the 1943 program, it was said.

The basketball schedules which also were to have been revised at this meeting, already have been altered to save several thousand miles of travel and it was thought they would be left about as they stand.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—There's material for a mile of columns in this date, and in what has happened to the sports world since Pearl Harbor day a year ago . . . So today's space will be turned over to the service department . . . And did you notice that the signal which sent American forces into action in Northern Africa was "play ball"?

Capt. Gordon Sympson, hailed as the first American to land in Morocco, was a star halfback on the University of Kentucky football team in 1937.

The crack basketball teams of the Norfolk Naval Training station and the Norfolk Naval Air station will reverse the usual procedure next Friday when they play for the benefit of a Christmas fund sponsored by Norfolk newspapers. Fort Story's team also will be on the card. Many of the past year's sports events have been for army and navy relief . . . When Barney Olsen, former Chicago Cubs outfielder, reported at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, he was assigned to duties under Seaman Fido Murphy . . . "What, you again?" bellowed Barney . . . The last time they had met was when Olsen was playing for Moline in the Three-Eye league and Murphy, an umpire, chased him from the game.

Two of the finest tributes received by Georgia's Rose Bowl-bound football team at the end of the season were cables from alumni in the combat zones . . . One from Northern Africa said: "Congratulations on a great season. Please send Charlie Trippi over here to help us catch Rommel. At present he is running like hell." . . . Another from England said: "We'll meet you after the Rose Bowl game in either Berlin or Tokyo."

The Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school football team opened its season with a 61-0 victory over Kansas and closed it Saturday against another Big Six team, Missouri—but fewer than half the men who faced Kansas were available for the Missouri game . . . Corp. Johnny Beazley, a world series star just a couple of months ago, reports: "I haven't run into a soldier yet who has any grudge against all ballplayers not being in the service. Instead, they want to talk baseball and listen to it and read about it."

36-Bar Leads City A-League

Scores Shutout Win; Selby Hits 680 Total.

Clear cut hold on first place in the City "A" bowling league was taken by 36 Bar keglers last night at Colony alleys with a 3-0 victory over Chet's Novelties, while Orange St. cafe dropped out of a first place tie by losing 1-2 decision to Liederkranz.

Harold "Cap" Selby blasted a 680 total for league scoring honors on games of 183-258-239, while Bill Donnellan had 627, J. Arntz 636, Johnny Perrine 643, Johnny Brandt 606, Phil Warga 618, Keefer 605, and Skeet Wolf 605.

Selby's 258 was high game.

M'SPADEN CAPTURES MIAMI OPEN TITLE

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—A thousand dollars in war bonds was Harold McSpaden's reward today for a hard-earned victory in what may have been the last golf tournament for the duration to bear a reasonable resemblance to peacetime resort events.

McSpaden fired a four under par 66 yesterday to total a 72-hole card of 272—four strokes ahead of Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill.

Toledo Hangs Up Big Score

Swamps Defiance For 97 to 29 Victory.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Ohio's college cagemen begin to hit their stride this week with many an apprehensive glance at the free-wheeling, high-scoring combination from Toledo university.

The Rockets loomed today as a district threat to the state championship held the past two years by Mt. Union.

Playing under a new coach, Burl Friddle, of Indiana, the Rockets scored a 97 to 29 victory over Defiance college Saturday night in their season opener.

Cincinnati university came from behind after lagging at half-time to nip Wilmington college 38 to 31 Saturday night for its first victory of the season.

Miami university's quintet showed great promise in its opening game by giving new Coach W. J. J. (Blue) Foster his first victory of the year. Tom Stamp, Lima junior, with nine points paced Miami to a 69 to 31 victory over Transylvania college of Lexington, Ky. Foster used 20 men and 15 scored.

Western Reserve's Red Cats showed surprising strength in its opening game by trouncing Findlay college 7 to 36. The Red Cats had an easy time of it all the way, piling up a 24 to 9 lead in the first quarter and maintaining the margin the rest of the game.

Findlay defeated the Toledo Naval Training Station five 59 to 29 earlier in the week and then dropped a 70 to 52 decision to Mt. Union on Friday night.

Cedarville's hapless cagers lost to Wilmington during the week and then lost 62 to 29 to Otterbein on Friday night.

City league opens its sesson Wednesday night.

Bowling Event Set March 13

Board Believes 150 Teams Can Be Entered.

DIRECTORS of Ohio's largest annual bowling tournament, the Inter-City, held a dinner meeting yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, looked over the wartime kegling situation, and voted to go ahead with their 32nd annual tourney, scheduled to open in Mansfield the week-end of March 13.

The Inter-City board didn't rush in with flags waving, and with hopes keyed up by undue optimism. They studied the problems of transportation, men in service, and wartime industry from every angle, and still decided they could put on a successful tournament.

Last year at Lorain the tournament drew 320 team entries in regular and booster divisions, and had a prize list of $7,400. The board agreed yesterday that an entry list of 150 teams would constitute a successful tourney in these times.

It was pointed out that Mansfield's central location makes the longest trip for bowlers in the Inter-City association 125 miles, and the average trip 60 miles, and the directors were confident that if the bowlers really want a tournament they will find a way to get here.

Enthusiasm for the tournament was reported from several sections where bowlers are demanding action now that the ABC tourney in Buffalo has been cancelled President A. M. "Del" Pollock of Lorain promised 25 teams for the tourney, while Mansfield is expected to have 35. The rest of the 150 shouldn't be hard to get, directors believed.

The association will follow its usual custom of conducting the tournament over week-ends for as many weeks as necessary. Schedules will be made so that few teams from any city will be coming here on one week-end, thus helping the transportation problem as far as commercial carriers are concerned.

It was decided that Booster team averages will be taken as of Feb. 1, and that highest league averages will count instead of composite averages.

Entries will close Feb. 16.

Present at yesterday's meeting were President Pollock, A. A. Wintersteller of Sandusky, E. F. Wilcox, Elyria, Barton Blair, Mt. Vernon, W. D. Thomson, Delaware, R. J. Roesch, Sandusky, L. S. Connor, Findlay, R. E. Culver, Tiffin, Art Hilborn, Mansfield, and J. W. Hays, Alliance. Only two members of the board were absent.

THEATERS

Stage Band.

Louis Prima brings his famous trumpet and band to the Madison stage today for four performances. The New Orleans maestro who succumbed to the lure of the trumpet after studying violin for some years first gained attention at New York's "Famous Door," where he remained for nine months before going to Hollywood. He has appeared in pictures with Alice Faye and Don Ameche and his gravel-voiced singing and humorous antics as a leader have earned him a unique trademark in recent years.

Musical Show.

The laughs and heartaches of a pair of young vaudevillians out to achieve "big time" on Broadway prior to World War I, provides plot for Judy Garland's starring picture, "For Me and My Gal," at the Ohio. The variety stage furnishes a glittering backdrop for the production which introduces the musical hits of the day including, "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," "After You've Gone," and "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm?" Gene Kelly of the New York stage success, "Pal Joey," plays opposite Miss Garland and the cast includes George Murphy, Ben Blue and Keenan Wynn.

War Drama.

Two glib war correspondents outwit their editor and lose their jobs by doing so in "Somewhere I'll Find You," Clark Gable's starring vehicle at the Ritz. Robert Sterling plays Gable's brother and partner-correspondent who considers a blond newspaperwoman his girl until Gable comes along. Lana Turner plays the girl who leads both men on a chase when she leaves to evacuate children in China. Reginald Owen, Patricia Dane and Lee Patrick are others in the cast. "Little Tokyo, U. S. A., with Preston Foster, is the co-feature.

Air Spectacle.

"Eagle Squadron," the aerial thriller at the Park, deals with the American fighter pilots with the Royal Air Force. Robert Stack and Diana Barrymore are teamed in the picture which concerns a young California flier and a pretty member of the WAAF. The film contains some authentic shots of a Commando raid and of Britain's women at work in war industries, radio communications and other phases of service. Zasu Pitts' picture, "Miss Polly," is the co-feature.

TIDE TURNING AS FIRST YEAR OF WAR CLOSES

Nation Moving Forward on Rough Road to Victory on Pearl Harbor Anniversary.

ing higher taxes than ever before. But Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said "we must—and can—do more." The war budget so far is $240,000,000,000.

In one year of war casualties have totaled 53,962. But, in the belief of responsible military authorities, losses have been only a fraction of what they will be.

More than 6,000,000 Americans are under arms, compared with 2,187,000 a year ago. But President Roosevelt has said that there must be 9,700,000 by the end of 1943.

Americans have made gains in the Solomons. But Secretary of Navy Frank Knox warned that "The enemy will come back."

United Nations forces have pushed the Japanese back to the sea in New Guinea. But the enemy still is fighting and American and Australian soldiers are still dying.

Allied troops have occupied most of French North Africa. But the struggle for Tunisia is hard. It will cost many men and machines before it is finished.

In Europe, Africa and Asia, United Nations power is gathering. But the enemy remains strongly entrenched. Allied victory, however certain, is not in sight. Barring internal convulsions which no man can predict, Washington offers no encouragement to those who would like to think the war will end in 1943.

On the home front, the United States is learning that the resources it has boasted about are not inexhaustible. There are shortages in everything — manpower, food, materials. Rationing of civilian goods—already extended to gasoline, sugar, coffee and sundry gadgets and machines—will encompass many, many more things. These shortages mean that Americans must tighten their belts and give up luxuries they heretofore have considered necessities.

"In 1942," the OWI said, "we were still living off our peacetime fat. We are now close to the bare muscle and we can only proceed by toughening and increasing that muscle."

War leaders do not doubt that Americans will come through. A year ago tomorrow, President Roosevelt said that "no matter how long it may take, the American people will win through to absolute victory."

Today, in a letter published by the Army and Navy Journal, he found grounds for confidence in a review of the first year of war:

"The truth about the war effort of the United Nations will make our people appreciate how great has been, and promises to be, our progress toward victory and freedom for mankind."

ALLOWANCE UP

Lower-Ranking Officers Get More For Uniforms.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Newly commissioned army officers will receive a $250 uniform allowance, instead of $150 as in the past, under a bill signed by President Roosevelt.

The uniform allowance — for captains and lesser officers—still will fall short of paying for minimum requirements for clothing and personal equipment, a study of price lists indicated. A compilation, based partly upon quartermaster price lists and partly on anticipated control of prices for wool uniforms, carried a total cost of $260.50 for essential requirements for an officer.

Army sources speculated that under the new allowance some officers who previously received $150 for their initial purchase of uniforms might be eligible to claim $100 addition now. The new law grants the $250 allowance to every officer who was on duty April 3, 1939, or thereafter.

PEG HEADS LOOP

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—(AP)—Coach "Peg" Elsesser of Portsmouth has been elected vice president of a new three-state "big eight" high school football conference which also may include Ironton, O. Other members are Huntington Central, Huntington East, Charleston, Stonewall Jackson and Parkersburg of West Virginia, and Ashland, Ky. Ironton is expected to join at another meeting here Dec. 15.

SOLDIER GOES TO COLLEGE, TOO

CAMP ATTERBURY, Ind.—(INS)—Just because there is a war on, is no reason to stop one's college course, according to Sgt. Marle L. Jones, of Camp Atterbury.

Sgt. Jones, a 25-year-old baker at the camp, has enrolled as a regular student at Franklin college, a few miles away from the cantonment. The soldier-student works nights at his job in the camp and goes to college classes in the daylight hours. Sgt. Jones is from Greenbriar, W. Va.

NOW WE CHOOSE BATTLE FRONTS

Axis No Longer Can Decide Where To Strike; Allies Seize That Initiative.

been battling the Japs for five years, and other Allies must be given increasing quantities of supplies.

4. America, which lost its rubber resources when the Japanese conquered Malaya and much of its east coast supplies when U-boats infested the western Atlantic, probably will find it necessary to draw its economic belt tighter and tighter—due not to the achievements of the enemy but to the requirements of our own and Allied armies and navies.

5. Barring some unforeseen internal crack-up of Germany, the campaigns to be fought this year may bring victory in sight by the time the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor rolls around. On the other hand, the United Nations forces may encounter some defeats as well as victories in the months ahead and it is certainly not out of the question that the end of the war may still be obscured by the future a year from now.

The important fact to keep in mind, qualified but unquotable officials said, is that from here on the development of the war is in the hands of the United Nations high command rather than those of Adolf Hitler and the war lords in Tokyo. This is exactly the reverse of the situation up to a few weeks ago.

When the Germans struck Poland, invaded France, tried to break Britain by air and finally turned on Russia they chose the time and place of attack. The victims of their aggression had to fight defensively. This was of enormous advantage to the Germans who could always pick the weak points to strike.

Much the same thing was true of Japanese operations in the Pacific until quite recently. Then her tentative thrust at India met stiff opposition, Tokyo was bombed, Japanese armies in China suffered new reverses, American submarines began taking a heavy toll of ships along Japan's extended supply lines. Gen. Douglas MacArthur started developing Australia as the United Nations bastion in the far Pacific and army troops and marines turned scores of Pacific islands into outposts to guard the MacArthur supply lines.

But it took three naval battles to force Japan into a definitely defensive position. Those were the battles of the Coral sea in May, at Midway in June and in the Solomons in November. The results of the battles were closely linked. Our victories in the Coral sea helped make it possible for the navy to concentrate forces at Midway when it was decided the enemy's next move would be in that direction.

The Midway action, in turn, was such a smashing defeat for the Japanese that the high command here concluded it would be possible to undertake an offensive step which was urgently required to give protection to the supply lines to Australia. The marine invasion of the southeastern Solomon islands and capture of the highly useful airfield on Guadalcanal was the result.

It has proved for the American side both a stationary and unsinkable "aircraft carrier" for use against Japan's bases to the north and also an irresistible lure for the Japanese navy which seems unable to reconcile itself to loss of the place.

TAKE TOP HONORS

TOLEDO —(AP)— Goransen's 20 alleys of Chicago took top team honors in the women's central states bowling tournament which ended here yesterday. They finished with 2996. Detroit's doubles team of A. Miller and M. Maxton copped the doubles title with 1271, and Irene Flowers of Toledo led in the singles with 685.

Paid Workers On Staff As Gas Panel Shifts Personnel

burn street, and Mrs. Mathilda Albrecht, Mansfield R. D. 4, are volunteer workers who have helped with the gasoline registration work since it began and have indicated they will "see it through."

Passengers carried by the Mansfield Rapid Transit company on Wednesday numbered almost exactly the same as those transported on Tuesday when the first day of rationing brought a 22 per cent increase, G. F. Van Tilburg, general superintendent said, with Wednesday's fares showing a slight increase. The period of Christmas shopping may affect the statistics, as well as the gasoline rationing, he pointed out, although he was inclined to believe the past week might be a typical one hereafter.

"Double header" buses are now operating on East Fourth and South Main streets between 4 to 6 p. m., Van Tilburg said. Extra buses have been operating all week during the morning peak period.

Spreng, chairman of the gasoline panel, expressed the opinion that motorists, who have been saving their gasoline the past few days, might discover they would have an adequate supply and drive more, thus relieving the bus congestion somewhat. Motorists have been urged to use their gasoline ration for necessary purposes, rather than save it for non-essential travel.

The period for issuing temporary rations for trucks was extended yesterday from Dec. 31 to Jan. 31, making it now possible for truckers to get their allotments for these two months by application to the panel. After the Jan. 31 deadline, it is expected that all truck operators will have their certificates of necessity and their ration books, Spreng said.

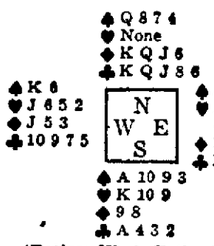
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

RISK TWO TO SEEK ONE

THERE IS one time when a finesse should never be considered in rubber bridge, or in total point play. That is when the loss of it would enable the opponents to gain the setting trick by ruffing a suit which you know one of them can ruff. If, however, your contract is impossible except with a successful finesse, then you should try it. Its failure could only mean that you get set two tricks instead of one.



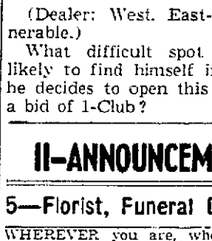
(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥	1 ♠
2 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠

South should have made his contract, in a social rubber game, as he got helped twice. A club lead ruffed, switch to a diamond and then another club ruff, followed later by a spade trick, could have settled his hash. But West led the heart 2, which he ruffed with the dummy's spade 4, his first break. Wishing to ruff out his other hearts, he made the hazardous lead of a club toward his A, dangerous with so many cards of the suit and East marked for great distribution.

After East ruffed this with the spade 2, South got his second luck break. Deciding unsoundly to try to cut down ruffing values in dummy, East led the spade 5. If South had taken that with the A and then led the trump 3 toward the Q, the hostile K and J would have fallen together. That would have given the defenders their second trick, and the only other one possible would have been the diamond A.

But South preferred to try the trump finesse when East led the 5. He played low, and the K won. West then led a second club, which East ruffed with the J, and the contract was set by the diamond A.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

What difficult spot is North likely to find himself in later, if he decides to open this deal with a bid of 1-Club?

SIX KILLED IN BOMBER CRASH

Rescue Crews and Posse Finds Bodies of Victims Burned Beyond Recognition.

(By International News Service)

SAN RAFAEL, Cal.—Wreckage scattered for more than 500 yards across rugged terrain of northern Sonoma county today was mute evidence of the crash of a heavy bomber that claimed the lives of six army airmen.

Army rescue crews and a sheriff's posse reached the scene of the crash early today after a tedious five-hour trek on foot and horseback.

None of the six bodies—burned almost beyond recognition—had been identified, army authorities said.

The plane, on a routine flight from Hamilton Field, Cal., crashed on the old Marshall ranch, six miles from Stewart's Point.

Ray Hedgepath, owner of a 12,000-acre sheep ranch, saw the crash. Telephoning Hamilton field and the nearest sheriff's office, Hedgepath related:

"I was awakened by the roar of airplane motors flying very low. I saw the plane circle. Its motors suddenly sputtered. Then there was a terrific explosion and the ship crashed behind a ridge of distant hills."

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE— Diagnostician. By Harold Gray

MEMORY! CURSE MEMORY! WHY MUST WE REMEMBER WHEN IT HURTS SO MUCH? ME! JUST THE KID NEXT DOOR--FOUR YEARS OLD--HE IN EIGHTH GRADE--SO I WAS PRACTICALLY AN OUTCAST-
12-7-42
BUT I THOUGHT HE WAS WONDERFUL! HE WAS--IS! THEN HE WENT AWAY-- AND I?---ALL WENT WRONG! I GREW UP--MARRIED--LORETTA CAME--IF IT WERE NOT FOR LORETTA, I'D HARDLY RECALL THAT I WAS MARRIED--- EXCEPT FOR THE PAIN--HEARTACHES!
IT WASN'T LOVE! I NEVER LOVED ANYONE BUT HIM! AND THEN MY MIND SEEMED TO BE GOING--AT FIRST, IT SCARED ME--THEN I HARDLY CARED-- EXCEPT FOR LORETTA--DOWN! DOWN! DOWN!
EXISTING IN A HOVEL! PICKING RAGS--GARBAGE CANS! AFRAID! AFRAID TO GO OUT, EXCEPT AT NIGHT! "CRAZY KATE"! ME! "CRAZY KATE"! AND THEN--- THEN HE CAME--CAME BACK! AND HE CAME TO ME!
HAROLD GRAY

PAM— "Something Very Strange!" By A. W. Brewerton

THERE! SEE THAT? THOSE FLASHES--
THE DARK WINDOW ACROSS THE COURT SUDDENLY EMITTED FAINT DARTS OF LIGHT, LIKE FLASHES GIVEN OFF BY SOME SORT OF MACHINERY!
YES! I SEE THEM!
ODD, ISN'T IT? LIKE FAINT STAGE LIGHTNING!

WHY, THAT-- THAT'S ANNA'S ROOM! -!?
PAM WAS THINKING HARD! WERNER'S ROOM WAS IN THE "L" OF THE BUILDING, JUST BELOW PAM'S, GIVING A CLEAR VIEW TOWARD THE OTHER WINDOW!
THIS ISN'T THE FIRST TIME I'VE NOTICED IT, AND..
LISTEN, MR. WERNER, PLEASE DO NOT SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THIS TO ANYONE! I THINK I KNOW WHAT IT IS, AND IT'S VERY SERIOUS!
-BREWERTON

SOLDIER SEES DAD IN MOVIE

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(INS)—The showing of a movie known as "Apache Trail," at the base theater of the New Orleans Air Depot Training Station was suddenly interrupted by a series of "whoops" from the audience.

Cpl. Alfred Garcia, recently inducted from the Papago Indian reservation in Arizona, had recognized his father portraying an Apache chief in the film. Looking a little closer, Garcia noticed that another of the "Apaches" in the film was his uncle.

UNEVEN ROUTE CONTINUED BY STOCK LEADERS

Government Cancellation of War Supply Orders Causes Decline in Backlogs.

NEW YORK — Le ding stocks generally continued to travel a slightly uneven route in today's early market dealings.

At a quiet opening gainers of fractions included Lockeed, Johns-Manville, American Telephone, Anaconda and Montgomery Ward. Off a shade were Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and General Motors.

Boardrooms studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "cancellation of orders for war supplies by the government, reflecting the changed picture in the military program, has caused a substantial decline in order backlogs of steelmakers."

Despite the somewhat easier situation, the review stressed warnings by Washington officials against expectations that materials would be available for civilian use in larger measure than at present.

Planes Drop 'Bond Bombs' To Start Pearl Harbor Buying

Harold Post, M. Marveson and John Huck.

Third flight was composed of "Jap" Bower and David Cramer, Joseph Siler and Thomas Shacker, W. Jacobson and Irus Pattridge.

Immediately after the mock raid Mansfielders crowded into banks to fulfill pledges. At the Citizens National bank four clerks were unable to keep pace with the pledge tabulations. Carl Woolfarth, assistant cashier, reported.

At the Farmers Savings and Trust company H. C. Kyner, assistant secretary-treasurer reported bond sales exceeding $5,000 by noon and forecast a record rush for the afternoon.

Peter Mayer, bookkeeper at the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank reported business was "terrific" with three clerks snowed under with bond pledges.

At the Richland Trust company C. F. Fighter, secretary-treasurer, reported a rush which taxed every official and employe to the limit.

At Westinghouse during the morning hundreds of employes assembled to rededicate themselves to greater production effort and bond-buying. Lieut. J. D. Oliphant, navy material inspector, complimented the workers and told them that what they have done will appear easy to what will be required in the year to come. Lieut. G. F. Bateson of the army ordnance corps said, "Next year you must dwarf your great records of the year just past."

"Buy bonds until it hurts, and then buy more," was the plea of Sidney Earhart, president of 711 union local. Messages were read from A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board for Westinghouse, and from Donald Nelson, war production board chief. J. H. Ashbaugh, plant official, said, "There's room for everyone to help" in the war effort.

That Mansfield's civilian defense organization is approaching perfection was emphasized at last night's test mobilization when 1,200 protective unit workers reported that approximately 3,200 enrolled messengers and neighborhood volunteers distributed 12,000 bond-buying pledges in 16 minutes. The alert was sounded at 7 p. m., all reports were recorded at the control center in city hall by 7:16 and the all-clear signal was sounded at 7:30 p. m.

Probable need of up to four more raid signal sirens is being studied by technical committee members following last night's test of the 10 sirens. James McDermid, committee chairman, said today that "blind spots" are being ferreted out and where remedies cannot be made with material on hand additional equipment likely will be acquired.

"Under actual air raid conditions," Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense co-ordinator, said today, "radio broadcasting will be shut off a half hour before the alert over a 500-mile area. This should clear up many complaints from householders that they couldn't hear last night's alert "because their radio was playing."

Kalbfleisch said today that while record clerks have not compiled definite figures he anticipates the tabulation will show 100 per cent attendance of air wardens, food and housing workers, utilities and public works crews, police and fire auxiliaries, fire watchers and demolition and decontamination crews.

Reports to the control center showed complete or partial staffs at all stations embraced by the emergency medical service including first aid stations, casualty depots and mobile medical teams.

At some points in the city and surrounding area the sirens were heard distinctly beyond their normal carrying sector while in other sections, the technical committee reported, atmospheric and other conditions served to blot out the sirens.

Today Ralph H. Stone, state defense director, declared Ohio able to deal with sabotage and air attacks. "Knowing that the entire state is vulnerable from the air," Stone said, "the people of Ohio have spent all of 1942 planning and carrying out a far-reaching civilian and industrial protection program."

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—Glamour factory at war:

Miss Loretta Young, the war bond saleslady and movie actress, was all wet and she was burning up on one side—the side turned to the big American stove placed on the stage as antidote to the chill Chinese rains of her movie.

Coons

The rains had been falling intermittently for a week, and the good Chinese earth under the big black tent—for night shots—was gooey, ankle-deep mud. John Farrow, directing "China", loosed the spigots periodically on Loretta and Alan Ladd, her co-star, after which they could toast themselves from dripping wetness into mere clammy dampness—wonderful for colds, pneumonia and flu

Loretta is one of the glamour gals who manages to look beautiful no matter how bedraggled or wet she is. But you've never seen her less concerned about glamour. And that is news.

There was a time when Loretta, always a good talker, could give you more strictly movie "copy" in half an hour than many a star could in a day. Today she was still a good talker, but she wasn't talking about movies. She was talking about the war with zeal and fervor as if she were personally socking Japs and Nazis

She'd just come back from three months of bond-selling, and she was thrilled, she said, at seeing how Americans responded.

"But there are still some people," she said, "who think they're doing their full patriotic duty when they buy bonds. We've all got to do so much more than that—why, bonds are just the best investment in the world."

And so on and on, from one war angle to another. I cite it—and it's typical of today's glamour gals—just because it indicates what's mainly on the mind of this town that's supposed to be the haven of all the coddled personal vanities and conceits imaginable.

Even when Loretta finally talked about pictures the war stayed with us. "China" is a story of struggle against the Jap invaders, and Loretta chose it over other pictures offered because she has been up to her ears in China relief work

TROOPS MOVE IN TO QUELL JAP CAMP UPRISING

Internees Protest Arrest of Pro-Allied Alien at Internment Center.

(By International News Service)

MANZANAR, Cal.—A pre-Pearl Harbor day demonstration in which one pro-Allied Japanese was beaten severely was quelled by army troops today in this wartime home of 10,000 Japanese.

Troops were requested by Project Director Ralph P. Merritt as approximately 4,000 Japanese banded together in a mob to demand the release of one of the men jailed in connection with the beating.

Merritt emphasized that the mob was orderly and that he called the troops merely as a precaution.

The demonstration started Saturday night when six men entered the cabin of Fred Toyama, leader of the Japanese-American citizens' league and beat him severly.

Japanese police officers rounded up a number of suspects and gave them an all-night grilling. Tad Ureno and two others were arrested on suspicion, and Ureno was sent to the Inyo county jail in nearby Independence.

A demonstration was organized and Sunday noon several thousand Japanese walked to Merritt's office to demand Ureno's release. Merritt effected a compromise, agreeing to bring Ureno back to the Manzanar jail if the crowd would disperse.

Ureno was returned, but the crowd formed again yesterday evening to demand his release. Merritt called for army aid and Capt. Martin Hall led troops into the relocation camp.

Project officials said there has been an undercurrent of ill feeling between the "Nisei," Japanese born and raised in the United States, and the older Japanese, born or educated in Japan. The beating of Toyama, however, was the first overt act.

The Japanese police, of whom there are fewer than 70, were still trying vainly to disperse the crowd when Capt. Hall arrived with his troops The army quickly broke up the gathering.

FBI JAILS FIVE AS IT SOLVES KIDNAPING OF COLUMBUS BABY

(By Associated Press)

PORTSMOUTH — Ten-month-old Daniel Scanlon, kidnaped at gun-point last Oct. 12, was back in his young mother's arms today and five Huntington, W. Va., residents were in federal bureau of investigation custody charged in the abduction.

Raymond C. Suran of the Cincinnati FBI office said Mrs. Lloyd Cremeans, 23, of Huntington, was found in hiding here with the baby and confessed the kidnaping from St. Ann's infant asylum in Columbus after "falling in love" with the child while employed at the institution.

Police Inspector Thomas A. Scully of Columbus said Jane Scanlon, 17, the baby's mother, and two nuns from St. Ann's, were with the infant in Portsmouth's Mercy hospital where the child was treated for a slight cold.

Suran said Mrs. Cremeans and Carl Chapman, 30, both were charged with kidnaping under federal statutes, and that Preble Chapman, 23; William K. Kimble, 25, and his wife, Irene, 23, all of Huntington, were charged with conspiracy to kindnap.

Mrs. Cremeans, also known as Ruby Sexton and Ruby Cornell, was taken to a Cincinnati jail. Chapman, arrested in Ashland, Ky., and the others were jailed in Huntington. Suran said all would be transferred to Columbus promptly for arraignment.

Baby Scanlon was kidnaped from the St. Ann's second floor nursery by a woman who threatened Nurse Pauline Caplinger with a gun, later claimed to be a toy, and escaped in a waiting automobile. The infant's mother, an asylum employe, was at lunch.

Columbus detectives followed clues throughout eastern and central Ohio and questioned a Marion woman without solving the case. After 10 days, the federal Lindbergh law against kidnaping permitted the FBI to take up the hunt but nothing was reported until the baby was discovered in a Portsmouth rooming house, although the chase led into Kentucky and West Virginia.

Mrs. Cremeans, who worked in the asylum only a half day in July, was quoted by Scully as saying she had made elaborate plans since that time to make the child her own. She previously had been employed in the Columbus State hospital, he said.

Boyd Robinson's office some of the schools will close only for the week-end Christmas period.

It pays to advertise, whether the cause be bonds or boy friends although the latter was far from the intention of Mary Thompson, Westinghouse employe, when she posed for a "Remember Pearl Harbor" picture in connection with the war bond drive. A sailor, in a Minnesota training camp, so admired the likeness of Miss Thompson, in a recent Sunday edition of The News-Journal, that he wrote her his best wishes for success in the war bond campaign.

School children who work on farms have been made eligible for purchase of bicycles needed for transportation between school and home or farm, the OPA has announced—the catch is in finding a bicycle for sale! While it is expected that the majority of applicants under this amendment will be farm children who help with farm work before and after school, residence on a farm is not necessary to eligibility. The OPA made it clear that to qualify for a purchase certificate, the children must satisfy the ration board that the use of the bicycle will increase their usefulness.

Almost distracted from worry over losing her final citizenship papers in last Wednesday night's windstorm, Mrs. Schmidt was "cured" Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Bryant returned the missing certificate to her. The papers were found in the backyard of the Bryant home by Billy Zeigler, nine-year-old grandson of Mrs. Bryant.

COMMITTEE'S COMPROMISE EFFORT FAILS

Willkie Leads Opposition To Selection of Illinois Man For High Party Post.

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The Republican national committee met today for a showdown between Wendell L. Willkie and the considerable group of members who want to elect Werner W. Schroeder, of Illinois, party chairman.

Compromise efforts failed last night—for the time being at least—and Schroeder announced he was in the fight to a finish. Willkie already had announced that he would object to Schroeder's election to succeed Joseph R. Martin, jr., Massachusetts congressman and Republican leader of the house of representatives, who is resigning voluntarily.

Willkie, who is in New York, says Schroeder is a nice fellow personally, but that he is under the "Aegis of the Chicago Tribune."

"Even if he thought right, he could not do right," Willkie told questioners a few days before the Republicans gathered here. He added that he wanted a chairman who was an economic liberal and who would believe in and would support the declarations of the Republican party.

By that, Willkie meant the resolution adopted last April by the national committee in Chicago, which generally was regarded as a commitment to United States participation in post-war rehabilitation of the world.

Unless someone comes up quickly with a satisfactory compromise candidate there may be suggestions that everyone go home to think it over awhile longer. But Martin foresaw that contingency and so presented his resignation that the committee probably must elect a successor today or be without a chairman. It remains to be seen whether Willkie will duplicate the feat of the late Boies Penrose who steered the 1920 Chicago Republican national committee from a sickbed in Philadelphia or whether the absentee GOP leader of 1942 is just another man with a telephone. Last words from all concerned were that they would fight it out to a finish today.

Mme. Chiang Well On Way to Health, Will Require Rest

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of China's generalissimo, who arrived in this country last month for treatment of an old injury, today is making satisfactory progress, but requires complete rest for some time.

The Chinese embassy said that a complete diagnosis has been made since Madame Chiang's arrival and no serious organic trouble exists.

Her impaired state of health is partly the result of an accident sustained in the fall of 1937 when visiting the Shanghai war front, and partly the result of the intense and unremitting strain of her work since then, the embassy said.

MEDITERRANEAN AXIS POSITIONS RAKED FROM AIR

destroying at least two gasoline trucks and more than 20 other vehicles.

The Reggia raid was made Saturday night some 24 hours after the great army Consolidated B-24 bombers had struck at Naples.

Fighter-bomber planes raided the Gela airdrome in Sicily yesterday and scored hits on aircraft dispersal areas.

Bombers made a strong attack Saturday night on the Bizerte dock area, damaging the railroad freight station and fuel storage tanks.

Railroad tracks were bombarded between Sousse and Sfax on the Tunisian east coast by fighters and a fuel container was set ablaze. The fighters shot down two north-bound enemy transport planes off the coast.

Other fighters attacked a railroad locomotive, Sfax airdrome and a merchantman and a schooner off the east coast.

Over the Libyan battle area long range fighters attacked Axis transport and fighter-bombers, raided enemy gun positions, while the ground forces engaged in patrol activity along the Agheila line on the Gulf of Sirte.

Only two Allied planes were lost in all operations reported.

Map Plans For Tunis Clean-Up

LONDON — (AP) — Allied commanders were reported today to have "laid plans for the final phase of the Tunisian campaign" at a candlelight conference in a farm house kitchen late yesterday while heavy fighting raged on in the Tebourba-Mateur sectors.

A Reuters dispatch from the battlefront told of the conference.

Heights dominating Tebourba, strategic communications center 20 miles west of Tunis, are securely held by Allied troops, the Morocco radio said in a broadcast recorded in London.

Allied fighters, still handicapped by the lack of wholly prepared advance air fields, were declared nevertheless to be attacking German and Italian positions continuously while bombers pounded Tunis, Bizerte and Tripoli.

Allied lines were reported here to be holding firm despite dive-bombing attacks as reserves and supplies were moved up, mile by mile, for the final offensive.

A Vichy radio broadcast recorded in London, however, asserted that British forces were retreating west of Tebourba, and the Italian high command declared that "mopping up operations" had been completed at that town after four days of fighting which cost the Allies heavily in men and material.

Aerial blows were emphasized in reports from Allied quarters and the Morocco radio said that "in the course of four weeks of fighting, the Axis has lost in Tunisia 139 aircraft and the Allies 74."

French Camel Corps Advances on Libya

LONDON—(UP)—Crack French camel corps troops have captured a series of mountain passes on the southwest Libya border in a new threat to the Axis rear, a French communique announced today, while Allied and Axis troops continued an indeterminate battle for northeast Tunisia.

Radio Morocco said the camel corps had taken the hills in the region of Djanet, or Fort Charlet, 600 miles southwest of Tripoli, thus obtaining posession of dominant Mt. Kiska, 5,576 feet.

However, dispatches indicated that the French colonial forces had probably seized all key hill passes extending 300 miles northward along the Libya-Algeria border as far as Ghadames, at the junction of Algeria, Tunisia and Libya, 300 miles southwest of Tripoli.

RIP NAZI CITY IN NIGHT RAID

bombs on English south coast towns last night, with three minor casualties, and there were a few bursts of anti-aircraft fire on the southeast outskirts of London, but the air battle had been a one-way affair for 48 hours.

A hundred bombers, in daylight and at low levels, dropped high explosives and incendiaries on the Eindhoven Radio Tube plant Sunday while more than 400 fighter planes, piloted by Americans, British, Canadians, Norwegians, Poles, New Zealanders and Fighting French swept over northern France and Holland strafing trains and troops and trying to pick fights with German planes. American Liberator bombers tore up the airport at Abbeyville, while fortresses bombed Lille.

The air ministry said that reconnaissance over Eindhoven showed that one section of the Philips factory was enveloped in smoke and flames, apparently gutted, while a larger section had one large fire and many smaller ones, with explosions still going on from delayed-action bombs. The roofs of all buildings in one section had collapsed.

The most damaged section was that containing the tube assembly plant and the unit producing gases used in tubes. All the tube production had been going to Germany. Almost every weapon in modern warfare depends on radio tubes.

From the reported loss of nine bombers last night, the night raid probably was of 300-plane caliber.

While two heavy American bombers failed to return from the Lille and Abbeyville raids, it was understood that all seven enemy planes shot down were bagged over Lille, indicating the hard-hitting, heavily armed Fortresses are still the toughest thing the Germans have to beat.

One escorting fighter wing reported "excellent results" from the bombing of Lille, where the Fives Locomotive and Carriage works has a production capacity of 100 to 150 locomotives per year. The Lille raid was part of the Allied long range strategy of disrupting German rail communications and transport. The plant at Lille also was the target for the great Oct. 9 raid in which a hundred Fortresses and Liberators participated.

Nazi Counter-Attacks In Russia Repulsed

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — Germany threw hundreds of tanks and tens of thousands of men into ferocious counter-attacks northwest and southwest of Stalingrad today in an attempt to break open the closing claws of a Russian pincers drive and maintain their slipping grip on the Volga river industrial city.

Southwest of Stalingrad, especially, the Germans threw big tank and infantry forces into powerful attacks.

They lost 40 tanks in one attack southwest of Stalingrad and 37 tanks in another northwest of the city, special dispatches said, in addition to thousands of men killed.

It was asserted that all enemy counter-attacks were broken and the Russian advance continued in local gains.

Dispatches reported that the Germans evidently realized the fate of Stalingrad depended on their ability to make good their counter-attacks at the extreme ends of that front, and were sparing neither men nor materials.

On the central front west of Moscow, in both the Rzhev and Velikie Luki sectors, the Germans also were counter-attacking without success, dispatches said.

COURT NEWS IN ASHLAND COUNTY

ASHLAND—Suit for injunction to maintain a right-of-way has been filed in common pleas court by Henry Guthrie against Harvey E. and Zada Guthrie. The plaintiff alleges that for more than 21 years a right-of-way has been in use to permit crossing of the defendants' land to remove timber from a tract owned by the plaintiff, but that the defendants now refuse to allow the plaintiff to cross their property.

The Troy township board of education has been given three months in which to accept a bequest of a monument on the school grounds made by the late Urias P. Fulmer of Nova. Common pleas court recently construed Fulmer's will, determining that Fulmer intended a stone monument to be erected on the Nova school grounds with a suitable piece of artillery to be placed by the monument, the same to be erected in the memory of Fulmer and his wife. The will bequeathed $7,000 for the monument and if the board fails to act on acceptance, it will be deemed to be refusal and if the request is refused, the $7,000 will go to C. C. Bailey of Ashland, residuary legatee.

Common pleas court has directed that $83 belonging to Percy Frary, held by the Erie Railroad company, be applied to a judgment held by Marjorie Frary.

The divorce suit of Sybil Glenn against Caylor B. Glenn has been dismissed in common pleas court, the court sustaining a motion to dismiss on the grounds that testimony of the plaintiff showed she was not entitled to a divorce because of her own conduct.

Judgment of $248 is asked in a suit filed by the Sigafoos Lumber company against Rankin-Miller, a partnership. The amount is claimed on an open court.

The lumber company has also filed suit for judgment of $134 against David and Rhea Cowen and asks foreclosure of a mechanic's lien.

Counts Toll of 6,641 Japs in Solomons

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Japanese killed by United States soldiers and marines on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons stood at 6,641 today — not counting thousands of Nipponese estimated to have been destroyed by sea action, artillery fire and air bombings.

The navy said yesterday that the 6,641 figure was based on an actual count of bodies. The report indicated naval authorities here believed the Japanese have received no appreciable reinforcements or supplies since their huge armada was blasted by United States forces in a great naval battle three weeks ago.

American marines wiped out 400 Japanese soldiers and five bases while losing only 17 of their own men, yesterday's communique said. The action, mostly in the jungles of Guadalcanal, occurred over a number of weeks.

Tokyo Lists Year's Losses in War on U. S.

TOKYO (From Japanese broadcasts)—(AP)—A Tokyo broadcast said today one battleship and three aircraft carriers were among 40 Japanese warships sunk during the first year of the Pacific war, and imperial headquarters listed other losses in manpower, merchant shipping and aircraft.

A communique issued on the first anniversary of the conflict said Japan's losses in that war (excluding the fight with China) were 21,166 killed and 42,577 wounded up to Nov. 1, and 394 aircraft and 62 ships up to Dec. 1.

The radio subsequently issued higher figures for both ships and planes. It said 40 Japanese warships and 65 merchant ships were sent to the bottom, while 556 aircraft "dived into enemy targets or failed to return." In addition, 22 warships were reported damaged, among them one battleship and two aircraft carriers.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

One Year After Pearl Harbor Attack

THE UNITED STATES today enters its second year of actual participation in a war that now encircles the entire globe.

The past year started with awkward experimentation, much blundering, administration efforts to fight the war on the basis of New Deal theories, and with little public realization of the immensity of the task ahead.

In many cases self interest was placed above the national welfare, and misunderstandings, labor controversies, jurisdictional disputes and governmental failure to prevent excessive wage increases in war industries, resulted in many strikes, slow-downs and disturbed conditions which seriously retarded production of war materials and supplies for a number of months.

Yet, in spite of all handicaps, there has been progress—amazing progress—during the past year, and this gives an idea of the potentialities of this great nation when its full war strength is developed and put into action.

This is the accomplishment toward which the people of the United States are moving on today's anniversary date of the treacherous and destructive attack which the Japanese made on Pearl Harbor.

It is becoming better realized by more people that nothing else really matters unless the war can be won—just as first thought in case of fire is to rescue persons from the burning structure.

Public thought in the United States has been, and continues to be based on the assumption of assured victory—and some people seem to still think that there can be this assurance without any participation or sacrifices on their part.

It will become more and more evident, however, that this cannot be done and that there must be voluntary or enforced acceptance of wartime restraints to which Americans have not heretofore been accustomed.

Thus far these restrictions have been relatively mild, and the process has been along educational lines, but entrance into the second year of war—with the end not in sight—will quickly bring new and more stringent changes from the habits of peacetime living, with probably sterner compulsion for those who do not voluntarily conform.

Lives of some of America's fighting men will be lost during the coming year of war, others will be wounded, some will be captured and held by the enemy—these things cannot be avoided in such a frightful war as this—but there can also be the more cheerful thought that the passing of each day brings a victorious end of the war ONE DAY NEARER.

A fitting pledge for every American, on this Pearl Harbor anniversary day, would be: "I may not understand why it is necessary, but with God's help, I will do whatever my government asks me to do to aid in winning the war, and I will consider no sacrifice of time, money, or convenience too great to be willingly endured."

Freedom Depends On Free Press

CARL W. ACKERMAN, dean of the Columbia school of journalism, in a recent address in New York City, pointed out the dangers in restricting freedom of the press as is now being attempted in suit filed by the department of justice against the Associated Press and 1,275 daily newspapers.

"If those who are determined to freeze the press, succeed in achieving their objectives, we may have freedom of speech, but be deprived of freedom to speak, because the facilities and instrumentalities of communication will be frozen for the duration and only those governmental officials and agencies beyond censorship control will be able to use them.

"Under the cloak of war emergency, the American way of life is being profoundly changed by law, by directives, by executive orders, by judicial decisions, by consent decrees and by accomplished facts which the people are told about after the events."

Dean Ackerman pointed out that insofar as censorship of war activity was necessary to the success of war plans, no one has a right to object and no journalist would purposely give aid or comfort to an enemy, but he said the present attack on the press "has no justification whatsoever by the necessities of war. The object of that suit is not to preserve the freedom of the press but to freeze the press into a new mold, not during the war but in perpetuity."

Axis Also Has Postwar Plans

WHAT would happen if Hitler should win has been told many times. Some new details are now furnished by Frederick Oechsner, for nine years Central European manager of the United Press, in his new book, "This Is The Enemy."

Europe, it seems, would be ruled by a "league," an organization of the Nazis and their associates. Plans have been drawn for the building which would house its delegates. Germany would control all Europe to Moscow and the Volga. From the Volga to the Urals there would be a temporary Jewish state "until the solution of the Jewish problem is found." Beyond the Urals Japan would control. No other state could have a parliament or army of any kind. Aviation would be under German direction. Italy would have no more say in the new world than Greece or Belgium.

When this was settled, our turn would come. The reason for the German attack on Russia was to get oil and wheat for the coming war with the United States.

Obviously the time to stop all this is now, while we still have allies.

Even a year after Pearl Harbor there are some folks who don't seem to believe the story.

Edgar Guest suggests: "Kill a rumor on the spot, let it die and be forgot."

The Japs must also be made to "Remember Pearl Harbor."

'Silver Bloc' Plunders Treasury

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — For years it has been said that the average Chinese was scrupulously honest with regard to his personal dealings, but would not hesitate to defraud his government. The only thing that would deter him from robbing the public treasury, under this theory, would be fear of punishment, not moral scruples.

Years ago that seemed perplexing to most Americans, but times are changing. It is possible that the scruple has some connection with the total population of the countries in question.

One doubts that the so-called "silver bloc" in congress would have dared function a hundred years ago, when the population of the United States was very small. At that time the idea of taxing the whole country to pay a subsidy to a small percentage of the population, if one can judge anything about the temper of the people from reading political history of the Mexican war period, would have aroused tremendous resentment.

Today there is resentment against the plundering of the treasury by the silver producing states, but it seems to be confined to a small number of indignant persons, so widely scattered as to have little political influence.

The best proof of this is that Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, one of the leaders of the silver bloc, recently made public a threat he had received from a critic of the silver subsidy policy. This person threatened harm to the Nevada senator, whom he accused of treason.

A shrewd politician, Senator McCarran knows perfectly well the public reaction to the use of the word "treason." Also to threats of bodily harm. But in view of what the silver producing states are getting away with, it is simply flabbergasting that the senator chose to make a public issue of it, instead of quietly putting the local police, or, if he does not have much confidence in them, of the FBI, on the case.

WHAT causes the surprise is that the senator should do anything calculated to provoke discussion of the merits of the silver subsidy, for it has long been obvious that only two classes of people, both minorities, approved it. One is those whose localities benefit from the subsidy, and the other is those who remain of the William Jennings Bryan "Free Silver" advocates.

But why should Senator McCarren count on reaction of sympathy for HIS side because of the use of the word "treason?"

Remember the court martial of Gen. William Mitchell?

What happened was that Mitchell was a voice crying in the wilderness, to which little attention was paid. Because he felt he HAD to shock people he gradually made his statements stronger and stronger. So finally he accused the senior officers of the army and navy with "treason."

Even those of us who agreed with him then did not believe the brass hats of the army and navy were guilty of "treason." We thought them very guilty indeed of stupidity, or absurdly closing their eyes to a change in warfare which comparatively left them in the sailing ship days. But treason? No!

And if we had 400,000,000 people, like the Chinese, maybe even fewer of us would care how much the silverites looted the treasury.

Hate Is Not Answer

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU WILL read this on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

And your mind will be filled with fury. There is not an American whose life was not, in some way, blighted by that horror . . . whose faith did not totter before that treachery. In all history, there was no fouler chapter.

And still the issue is at stake. Our boys are dying in the Solomons, in Chinese jungles, on the desert dunes of Africa, in prison camps of which we dare not think. And on the bloody beaches of Bataan there gapes a wound which time will never heal.

So today I am to write an article in memory. It should be easy to write such a column. One only needs to call upon the Hate that flames so easily in any human vein. I only need to speak of ravished innocents, slaughtered babes and tortured men—and with these words I'd build a monument to all our dead.

And yet, I cannot think that Hate should be our answer.

I cannot think that Hate will heal the horror of Corregidor, of Coventry, of London or of Greece and Crete.

I cannot think that Hate will be reward or answer to the sacrifice we're made . . . or fitting tribute to the dear dead whom we've lost.

IF WE CAN ONLY ANSWER HATE WITH HATE, THEN WHAT WILL BE THE USE OF ALL THIS CRUELTY? AND WHAT THE GAIN?

I am a realist. I know, without befogging sentiment, just what war means. I know that we must make war fierce if we would make it short. I know, with tears, the hardships which our boys must face and all the brutal answers they must learn to give. I know—and loathe—the total ugliness of War. I know that we must meet the System which we face, until we've wiped it out, forever, from this world.

All this I know, in grim reality. But still I cannot think we'll win the war with Hate. Nor win the Peace with festering revenge. To hate the greed and ignorance which made this war, that's right. But not to hate the poor, fanatic victim who must wage the war. To hate the secret scheming of the Nazis and the Japs, but not to hate a man because he's yellow-skinned, or to drive a bayonet through a bewildered child.

For those who hate sow seeds of endless war. If we are wiser than the ones who struck a year ago, we must be nobler in our pity and our tolerance. We must stand higher in our souls as in our flesh. We must be able to forget our rage and grief, be able to plant "greener pastures" for the world to come.

WE ARE AMERICANS

WE ARE AMERICANS BECAUSE WE'VE SEEN A FAIRER, FRIENDLIER RELATIONSHIP WITH MAN TO MAN.

We always must, and always should hate foul and fiendish aims. But, we Americans, we can't forget the Brotherhood of Man.

It's easy, yes, to hate. But we, who've chosen nobler, taller ends, can never find our answer in brutality. We cannot stoop again to jungle fear and cruelty.

HATE WILL NOT END A WAR: NOR WILL IT EVER HONOR OUR BETRAYED AND DEAD. WE MUST GIVE SOMETHING BETTER IN MEMORIAL. SOMETHING THEY WOULD HAVE WISHED TO GIVE IN THEIR LAST GASP.

Upon the bloody waters of Pearl Harbor we can only lay ten deathless words:

"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Then fight to prove we're worthy of those words:

Submarines Playing Large Part In Sinking Jap Merchant Ships

—By GLENN BABB

WHEN Japan's dream of a great martime empire lies in ruins a major share of the credit will go to the United States submarine and air fleets which almost certainly are destroying her merchant marine faster than she can replace losses. Only infrequently do the submarines make the headlines, but they are contributing mightily to the oriental enemy's eventual downfall.

The curtain of secrecy was pulled aside the other day to allow a brief, heartening glimpse when Lieut. Com. T. B. Klakring turned up at Honolulu with his sub's log showing eight Japanese ships sunk and four more damaged, most of them within sight of major Japanese ports. He told of lying so close offshore that it was possible to watch a horse race meeting.

Klakring of course could not say exactly where this was, but unless this writer's recollections of 15 years' residence in that vicinity are at fault those races could have been on the Negishi course, about 1,000 yards from the waterfront just around a headland from the great port of Yokohama.

In a sense Japan is in a situation like Britain's; from a small island homeland she is trying to hold a vast overseas domain together in the face of an enemy slashing at her shipping under, on and above the seas. But while Britain is succeeding, with the help of the United States, it is doubtful whether Japan has the resources or the ability to succeed.

LET'S look at some figures. Japan is believed to have entered the Pacific war with about 6,000,000 tons of merchant shipping. The Japanese picked up a few score thousand more tons in oriental ports but not enough to change the total materially.

Now announcements of the American armed forces indicate that during the first year of the Pacific war Japan has lost nearly 250 noncombatant vessels, freighters, tankers, transports, supply ships of all kinds. Nearly 150 of these are credited to submarines.

Assuming that these ships average 5,000 tons, which seems conservative, they represent a loss of 1,250,000 tons, probably 20 per cent of the entire merchant fleet.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON —Well, gasoline rationing is here and I think no popular reaction has been more disappointing to the men in charge of the homefront battle than the opposition to rationing that has come from some quarters.

Actually, not since the war started has the administration approached any step considered necessary to winning the war with such caution.

Last spring, five months after we entered the war, nationwide gasoline rationing as a means to conserving rubber was considered inevitable. As long ago as that, statisticians could show that unless some such action was taken, about 20,000,000 of our 27,000,000 passenger cars would be idle for lack of tires by the end of 1943 or early in 1944.

THE present rationing program would have gone into effect in midsummer if bitter resentment to it hadn't spread over the middle west and western states. Convinced that various agencies had made a muddle out of the rubber business and that an informed public would welcome sacrifices to meet this wartime emergency, President Roosevelt asked Bernard M. Baruch and his fact-finding committee to bring some kind of order out of the chaos.

Baruch and his associates put all the facts together in an orderly sequence and they endeavored to show that "mileage rationing" is the only known solution to the rubber shortage problem.

Why "mileage" rationing? Because, except for the motorists in the east (where there is a gasoline shortage due to lack of transportation facilities), the powers that be don't give two whoops how much gasoline you use, provided you don't use it in driving your car. If you live outside the east, you can pour it on the ground, start fires with it, do anything you like except use it to consume rubber.

THE Baruch committee and the administration thought this would be clear to everybody. It wasn't. Isn't even now.

The one legitimate objection to "mileage" rationing is that in many sections of the country transportation problems (distances to be traveled, lack of any other means of travel, etc.) are different from those in other areas and that blanket rationing regulations for the entire country work an undue hardship on those communities.

The government is well aware of that. Already ODT Director Eastman is conducting a national survey of the effects of mileage rationing which may be the basis for new regulations to right these wrongs.

We Get Magnesium.

Quick development of our own sources of magnesium, an essential war metal, surely will be recorded among the principal American war achievements. Covered by foreign patents and monopolized, magnesium production was a war bottleneck that had to be broken.

The main new home source lies in Nevada, near Boulder Dam. There, at a site that was waterless desert until a few months ago, now are railroads, power lines, water lines, a town having 6,000 homes, a restaurant serving 25,000 meals a day—and the huge Basic Magnesium, Inc., plant. The plant is in operation, producing both magnesium and the equally necessary war chemical, liquid chlorine. Lighter than aluminum, magnesium is heavily consumed in the aircraft industry. It is required in making tracer bullets, flares and incendiary bombs. — Detroit News.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I don't know why you fuss so about minding the kids . . . they were no trouble at all to ME. . . . I just sent them over to the Kerns to play."

Man About Manhattan

'Where's Everybody?'

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — For the reason that it takes a play audience a little while to settle down, opening dialogue usually is of scant importance. Or perhaps I have that just turned around. Anyway, I was talking to some theatrical people the other day and we got to laughing over the Where-is-everybodies.

They are the young men in flannels who burst onto the stage in the opening scene, toss their tennis racquets on the couch, and say in loud and reasonably animated voices, "Where is everybody?"

You understand that these young men, although handsome and virile and usually with curly blond hair, have no place in the story. They are suitors of the ingenue, or something, and after going through their routine at the start, they retire to the stage door steps and smoke cigarets and talk learnedly of Welles and Saroyan, and reappear only in the last scene when they may possibly say "Where is everybody?" once more, but with a different inflection to show their versatility.

IT MAY be insinuated that these young gentlemen are a necessary evil, or that they are attending a theatrical school at the public expense. If they can get enough expression into their three words, they may get a part with five words and golf clubs in their next play.

Naturally, as beginners, they take a lot of ribbing from the old hands. Sometimes the youngsters recognize the unimportance of their parts, and have to be given pep talks. "Everything depends on you," they are told. "You set the tempo of the play." So the poor kids get all keyed up and as soon as they burst onto the stage they blurt out "Where is everybody?" at first opportunity. After a while, the audience quiets down, the star makes his or her entry, the spoken lines take shape and meaning (or sometimes don't, unfortunately), and the play starts.

THE play "Janie," which incidentally is turning in a net profit of $5,000 weekly, has quite a few soldiers whose duties on the stage are to be gay and noisy at a house party. Most of them are real soldiers from Camp Longstreet.

The mimeographed magazine "Cues," published by Genius Inc., is having a lot of fun with these soldiers and the order in which they appear on the stage. "Cues" noted that one soldier who had been the fifteenth to come onto the stage had been promoted to ninth.

This is all very frothy, maybe, but every time I compose a mental picture of a curly-haired young man in flannels bursting onto a stage and crying "Where is everybody?" I get the snickers and maybe you can too. It's certainly a more cheerful thought than the ingenue who pants: "Oh, but you don't understand!"

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Wash One's Hands Of.

It is, figuratively, to refuse all responsibility or interest in any situation; but the man originally associated with the phrase actually performed the libation, thereby laving himself of murder.

The allusion is to Pilate's turning Christ over to the mob, the allusion being to Chapter 27 of St. Matthew.

The literal reference is in the 24th and 26th verses:

"When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing . . . he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person (Jesus) . . . and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him up to be crucified."

Time for Cider

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE MADE our applebutter right after Thanksgiving. During late fall, we had picked up the apples from the frosted grass of a neighbor's orchard, and hauled them to a cider press among the hills southeast of our valley. My wife, the oldest boy and I poured the apples into sacks to make handling easier at the press. But the weather turned too cold for cider-making, so we left the apples. Some days later the owner of the press delivered two full 50 gallon barrels and rolled them from his trailer to our sloping barn bridge.

Here they remained a few days—not undisturbed, for when the cider was chilled and particles of ice were floating in it, I knocked out the bung and inserted a short hose. After sucking hard, so that the cold cider gushed full into my mouth, I quickly turned the free end into a pitcher and left it there until the dark amber juice swirled to the left, a foaming, brimming current. Quickly I removed the hose, replaced the bung, and hurried back to the house with the sparkling treasure.

It had a flavor that was rich and sweet and cool, delicious with orchard fragrance. Quaffed slowly, with my feet toward the fire, it held the same familiar charm as when I sucked it through a rye straw, as a boy, at my grandfather's hand-made press, where rye straw was used for strainers between the layers of apple pulp, and the pressure came from a lengthy hand-hewn log two-feet-square with a weight of stone at one end. I can see it yet, come swirling and foaming around the deep wooden groove and rolling through a short metal spout, a splashing, gurgling torrent, into an empty barrel. Just outside the shed, I heard my father urge the four teams of horses that are hitched to the arms of the horsepower apple grinder. I smell the distinct and unmistakable odor of apple pummace, and see the cattle drool as they eagerly crowd around for a short bite or two before being driven on into the barnyard.

"How soon are we going to boil the cider, Daddy?" a youngster shouts. "We've brought up a load of wood—can we start making fire now?"

With a jerk, I am roused from my reverie, and brought back to the task at hand . . . that of passing along to my own young family the goodness and flavor—and the precious memories of applebutter-making time upon the farm.
